Editorial Review

About the Author

Ronda Rich is the author of What Southern Women Know (That Every Woman Should) and a novel, The Town That Came A-Courtin'. She is an eleventh-generation Southerner who firmly believes that charm disarms. In her weekly syndicated newspaper column, "Dixie Divas," she writes humorously and poignantly about the South and its women. Ronda, who lives in Gainesville, Georgia, is a daily devotee of the fine art of flirtation.

Here's a perfect example of how appropriate it can be for an author to read her own work. Ronda Rich's Southern cadences guide women throughout the nation toward success--the Southern belle way. More or less, it's a playful study of the high art of eyelash batting, but this audiobook has some good points about how to maintain femininity and power in a masculine world. Charming is the word that best describes this production. Inevitably, you will find yourself intoxicated by Rich's delightful drawl--even if you don't agree with her thesis.
